SUNDAY INTRODUCTIONS

First reading Ezekiel 33:7-9
Naming the times in which we live is a difficult but essential role in the community of faith. It is up to the community to respond, but, on the other hand, it is up to the prophet(s) to speak out. The responsibility is very great, as we hear.

Second reading Romans 13:8-10
What is at the centre? Paul regularly summarises the Gospel in words inspired by the teaching of Jesus himself.

Gospel Matthew 18:15-20
The gospel today describes a kind of early disciplinary procedure, reflecting the experience of the emerging church. It may be worth recalling that there is a tension between this reading and the parable of the weeds and the wheat.

Kilmacud Stillorgan Local History Society begins its new series of talks on Thursday 14 September at 8.00pm. The venue is the Function Room of Glenalbyn, Kilmacud Crokes GAA Club.

Margaret Smith will give her talk on Samuel Clayton: Forger, Freemason, Freeman.

Samuel Clayton was a Dubliner who was transported to New South Wales in 1816 after a conviction for forgery. He later became a very prominent public figure in Australia.

The Wednesday Club will return on Wednesday 13th in the Parish Centre at 1.30pm. New Members are always welcome, enquires to the Parish Centre.
